NEWS-HERALD—The Hillsboro Gasette gang, like poitroons and cowards, having failed to meet my challenge published in last week's NEWS-HERALD, they gorforth self-confermed Liars and Sneaks—the brand as plainly visible as the mark which was put on Cain, R. T. Hough adding to their sin two additional falsehoods:

Ist lie—That the business men of Hillsboro on three different occasions urged the Railroad to discharge me.

2d lie—That I owe my retention in my present position to one of the proprietors of the Gasette.

After reading lest week's Gasette column and half editorial, it brought to mind the declaration made, I believe, by De Quincey, "When a man has once committed forgery he soon comes to think little of lying, slandering or bearing faise winces against his neighbor."

I thank the NEWS-HERALD for the opportunity to defend myself sgainst malicious assaults first began by the Gasette, and hope I shall not be compelled again to ask the favor.

The memorial sermon for the Daniel Rose Post G. A. R. of this place was preached last Sunday in the M. E. Church by Rev. Frank Gillian, of Bainbridge. The appearance of the weather in the early morning betokened a storm, but, notwithstanding, a majority of the Post and quite a goodly sized audience were there to greet the speaker and enjoy the pleasure of listening to a sermon, such as the people of this community are not often priveliged to hear. It was a grand, good talk, founded upon the fourth verse of the seventh chapter of Paul's letter to Timothy, "I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith." He advised mothers to teach their children "that the great principles underlying this government were true and righteous, and what it has cost to preserve them, and to keep the loyal fires burning on every hearthstone."

On closing he made a few touching and searching remarks to the order, exhorting them to raily around the "blood stained banner of Calvary," and to be faithful to all principles of right even unto the end. It was suited to the organization and the occasion, and calculated to encourage the upright in heart. The members of the post were much pleased, and will no doubt be benefitted thereby.
